

What happens to the research students conduct during their time abroad?

How can students share and use this valuable information now that they are back in the United States?

Global Sustainability Studies Academic Conference

Arizona State University student organization Global Sustainability Network (GSN), in partnership with the Walton Global Sustainability Studies Program at ASU, are pleased to announce ASU's first annual Global Sustainability Studies Academic Conference. This conference will provide students the opportunity to lead discussions about their research and experiences this past summer in panel discussions throughout the day, and inspire students in the audience who have not yet studied abroad, giving them direct access to talk to the students who have. The conference will conclude Saturday evening with a professor's roundtable discussing the impact of the program as well as the envisioned plans for the coming year's programs.

The event will also showcase photos and videos from the scholars' time abroad, discuss the 2016 Walton Global Sustainability Studies Program courses and have details about scholarships available through the Walton Initiatives.

Opening Reception:
Friday November 6th, 2015
4:00 – 8:00 p.m.

Conference:
Saturday November 7th, 2015
9:00 – 5:00 p.m.

facebook.com/ASUGSSI

ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY

sustainabilitysolutions.asu.edu

Register for this free conference at gssacademicconference.eventbrite.com